

ABSTRACT

A method and system that provides for efficient re-synchronization of a PPP link on a U_m interface is provided. When the PPP link is connected, if an indication that the communications of the mobile station is associated with a new network server is detected, only the U_m interface will undergo PPP configuration renegotiation. The method and system does not require the examination of all data packets for determining whether PPP configuration renegotiation is required.

09871479-053101